UPDATED GRANT PORTAL REGISTRATION INSTRUCTIONS

Registering your residency program in the new POMA Foundation grants portal

Register your program first

The POMA Foundation's new online grant portal links grants to organizations, not individuals. This means your residency program must be registered first.

In the future, your program can log in and apply for any grant (Resident Wellness, Bright Ideas, Community Enhancing), and all your org info will be pre-populated into the application. You can also see past applications.

Identifying someone besides the program director as the project lead in an application

If anyone besides the program director will manage the grant (ex: resident or faculty), you need to "collaborate" with that individual, and they should be named as primary contact in the grant application.

The POMA membership requirement applies to the individual running the program, whether that's the program director or the person identified as the primary contact in the grant application.

Steps to "collaborate"

1. Register the residency program in the portal first with the program director or staff as the primary org contact.
2. The PD/staff member starts the grant and invites the resident/faculty to "collaborate." They will be invited to create a log in.
    a. You decide what level of access for this person:
        i. View: Review
        ii. Edit: Complete or revise
        iii. Submit: Complete and submit
3. The resident/faculty logs in and completes the application.

This process avoids multiple accounts for your residency program in the portal and ensures you have continued access to your residency program account.
